Overview

Summary

Professional Career Services (PCS), a nonprofit division of Agudath Israel, was founded in Brooklyn, New York, in 1994. It was launched to find employment for the many people that were unemployed at the time. Subsequently, offices were opened up in Lakewood, New Jersey and Monsey, New York. As the economy improved, the need for job placement did not disappear; in fact, it grew, as PCS' reputation for successful job placement became well known. Applicants included both entry level job-seekers, as well as experienced professionals who required retraining and placement. PCS continues to serve job applicants through direct placement services, career counseling, educational courses, and preparation for employment. PCS has become known as a source for all career-related matters. Local employers and small businesses throughout New Jersey and New York contact PCS for employees on all levels – including controllers, accountants, health care administrators, programmers, and IT professionals. <https://pcsnynj.org/>

What does PCS do best?

PCS specializes in job placement connections for making that perfect match between potential employee and employer. In addition, PCS offers courses for job skill training. These courses range from computer literacy, office management, as well as more specific industry training options. PCS's resources are specifically focused on serving the Jewish community in the tri-state area. PCS specifically prioritizes their personal approach to the offerings they hold and offers a career counseling service.
